01 Brand Story & Positioning

Sano means “small” in Nepali. We chose the name because every product we sell is made for small people with big lives. We start online and will open a physical store in Kathmandu. Until then, every decision we make is designed for busy parents shopping on their phones and for the people who buy gifts for the children they love.

Warm

We speak like a trusted friend who has been through the same sleepless nights. We never talk down to parents.

Playful

Rounded shapes, marigold dots, and real children’s laughter sit at the centre of every visual. We stay light without becoming childish.

Honest & Practical

No invented urgency. No vague claims. Clear sizes, clear materials, clear returns. Parents deserve straight answers.

Audience

Primary: parents aged 25–40 who shop on their phones while managing work, home and little ones. Secondary: grandparents, aunts, uncles and friends buying gifts. We design for both, but the parent always comes first.

02 Logo System

Primary wordmark

Construction

- The wordmark is always written in lowercase Fredoka Bold.
- A solid Marigold full stop sits immediately after the final letter. It is never omitted.
- The full stop diameter equals approximately 12 % of the letter height.
- Never stretch, outline, add shadows, or change the letter spacing.
- Never place the logo on a busy photographic background without a solid cream or white container.

Clear space

Maintain clear space equal to the height of the letter “o” on all four sides of the wordmark. No other graphic element, text or edge may enter this zone.

02 Logo System · Rules

Minimum size

Digital: 24 px tall (wordmark only). Print: 8 mm tall. Below these sizes the Marigold full stop becomes illegible.

Approved colour versions

Ink on Cream

Cream on Ink

Ink on White

Incorrect uses — never do these

- Do not change the Marigold full stop to any other colour.
- Do not capitalise any letter (Sano, SANO, SaNo).
- Do not add drop shadows, gradients, outlines or 3-D effects.
- Do not place the logo on Coral or Marigold solid backgrounds.
- Do not rearrange the letters or stack them vertically.
- Do not use the full stop as a separate decorative element without the wordmark.

03 Colour Palette

Our palette is warm, optimistic and calm. Cream is the default background. Ink carries all text and primary actions. Marigold is the accent that signals Sano. Coral is reserved for large display text only. Sky and Leaf appear in secondary UI elements and illustrations.

Cream	#FFF6E9	Background, large surfaces
Ink	#1F2A44	Text, buttons, primary UI
Marigold	#F5B301	Accent, logo full stop, highlights
Coral	#E8604F	Large display text only
Sky	#8FD0EA	Secondary UI, soft illustrations
Leaf	#5DAA7A	Success states, nature notes

Usage rules

- Cream is the default page and card background. Never use pure white for large areas.
- Ink is the only colour used for body text and primary buttons.
- Marigold is the brand accent. Use it for the logo full stop, selected states, and small highlights.
- Coral may only be used for large display headlines (28 pt and above). Never for body text or small UI.
- Sky and Leaf are secondary. Use them for soft illustrations, success messages, and category accents.
- Never place Ink text on Marigold or Coral at small sizes — contrast fails WCAG AA.
- All interactive elements must maintain at least 4.5:1 contrast against their background.

04 Typography

Fredoka carries every headline. Nunito carries every sentence of body copy, UI labels and long-form text. Both fonts are freely available on Google Fonts and must be loaded with font-display: swap.

Rules

- Never mix a third typeface.
- Never set body copy in Fredoka.
- Never set headlines in all-caps Fredoka (it loses its friendly character).
- Letter-spacing on Fredoka headlines: –0.02 em. Nunito body: 0.
- Minimum body size on screen: 16 px (10 pt at 96 dpi). Prefer 17–18 px for comfort.

05 Photography Direction

We show real children in real moments. No stock models with perfect hair and staged smiles. Natural light, soft environments, and honest expressions create trust.

Do

- Natural daylight or soft window light
- Children aged 0–12 in genuine moments
- Simple cream, wood or soft-colour backgrounds
- Relaxed postures and unposed expressions
- Inclusive range of skin tones and abilities
- Products in use, not floating on white
- Slight grain is acceptable if it feels honest

Don’t

- Harsh studio flash or heavy retouching
- Overly styled or “influencer” looks
- Busy patterned backgrounds that fight the product
- Forced smiles or looking directly at camera every time
- Only one ethnicity or body type
- Products shot in isolation with drop shadows
- Heavy filters that shift brand colours

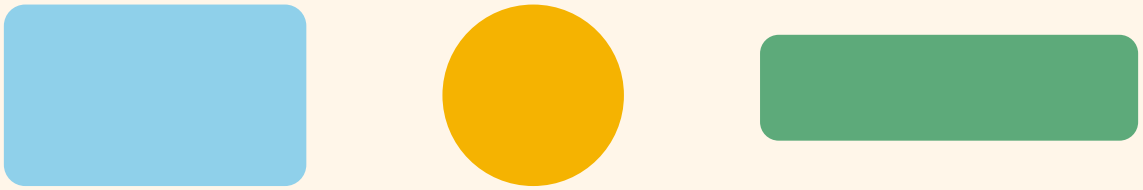

Technical notes

- Aspect ratios: 1:1 for product cards, 4:5 for social, 16:9 for hero banners.
- Always supply alt text that describes the child and the product, never “cute baby”.
- Crop with breathing room; avoid cutting through faces or hands.
- When compositing, keep the same warm colour temperature across a campaign.

06 Graphic Elements

Our visual language is built from soft geometry. Rounded rectangles, circles and gentle curves replace sharp corners and hard lines. Flat colour blocks replace gradients and shadows.

Core shapes

Rounded rect | Circle / dot | Pill / chip

Rules

- Corner radius on cards and containers: 12–16 px (digital) or 3–4 mm (print).
- Buttons and chips are always fully rounded (pill shape).
- No drop shadows. Depth is created by colour blocks and layering, not blur.
- The Marigold full stop may be used as a small decorative element in illustrations, but never larger than the logo version.
- Avoid hard geometric patterns. Prefer organic placement of soft shapes.
- Icons should be simple line or flat colour, 2 px stroke weight, rounded terminals.

07 Voice & Tone

We sound like a calm, experienced friend who has already measured the child, washed the fabric, and checked the return policy. Short sentences. No baby talk. No fake urgency.

Warm

We acknowledge the reality of parenting without drama. “You have enough on your plate. We made this simple.”

Playful

We allow light humour and delight, but never at the expense of clarity. “Small people. Big joy.” is enough.

Honest

If a product is out of stock, we say so. If a size runs large, we say so. We never invent scarcity.

Practical

Every sentence should help a parent decide or act. Remove adjectives that do not inform.

Examples

Good: “Soft cotton. Machine wash. Size 80–90 cm.”
Bad: “Ultra-premium organic bliss for your little angel!!!”

Good: “Arrives in 2–4 days in the Valley.”
Bad: “Hurry — only 3 left!!! Buy now or cry later.”

Good: “If it doesn’t fit, send it back within 14 days.”
Bad: “We’re sure you’ll love it forever and ever.”

08 Digital & UI Applications

The website and future app are designed mobile-first at 390 px, then expanded to 1280 px. All interactive targets are at least 44 × 44 px. Focus states are a 2 px Marigold outline. Contrast meets WCAG 2.2 AA.

Key interface principles

- Shop by age and height first. Category comes second. Size chips always show both age and height in cm.
- Guest checkout is the default path. Account creation is offered after purchase, never forced before.
- Primary button = Ink fill, Cream text. Secondary = outline. Accent (rare) = Marigold fill.
- Cards use flat Cream or White backgrounds with 16 px rounded corners. No shadows.
- Sticky bottom bar on mobile for primary actions (Add to bag, Checkout).
- Filters open as a full-height panel on mobile and a left column on desktop.
- Empty states are honest and helpful: “Nothing here yet. Try another age or height.”

Future store readiness

Product and stock data are structured so a future POS can push availability. Click-and-collect is already a delivery option (disabled until the store opens). One loyalty card will work both online and in-store.

09 Social Media System

Social channels extend the same calm, useful voice. We post less often and with more care. Every post should either help a parent or delight them — preferably both.

Platform priorities

Instagram (primary visual) · Facebook (community & ads) · TikTok (short product demos) · WhatsApp Business (customer care). We do not chase every new platform.

Content pillars

Product in real life	Children using the item, not just holding it.
Practical tips	Size advice, washing notes, age-appropriate ideas.
Behind the brand	How we choose materials, packing orders, store progress.
Parent moments	Quiet, honest snapshots that feel familiar.

Visual rules for posts

- Always use the approved colour palette. Cream backgrounds preferred for quote cards.
- Logo appears small in a corner or not at all on pure lifestyle photos.
- Text overlays use Fredoka for short headlines, Nunito for longer captions.
- No emoji in the interface; limited, intentional emoji in captions only if they add clarity.
- Stories and Reels follow the same photography direction: natural light, real children.
- Hashtags: keep to 3–5 relevant ones. Prefer branded or local tags over generic spam.

10 Packaging Direction

Packaging is the first physical touchpoint. It should feel calm, sturdy and easy to open with one hand while holding a child. We prioritise recyclable materials and clear labelling.

Principles

- Cream or uncoated kraft as the primary outer surface. Ink for text. Marigold for the logo full stop and small accents.
- No plastic windows unless functionally necessary. Prefer simple die-cut or paper tape.
- Size and age information printed clearly on every pack so parents can check without opening.
- Tissue or paper fill in matching cream. No coloured plastic confetti.
- A small thank-you card with the line “Small people. Big joy.” and care instructions.
- Returns label and instructions included in every order — practical, not promotional.

Future store packaging

When the physical store opens, the same visual system will apply to shopping bags, tissue and gift wrap. One loyalty card will be accepted both online and in-store. Packaging should feel continuous so a customer who shops both channels experiences one brand.
